Director, Central Intelligence Agency

Dear Adm. Turner,

You were very kind to remember me during your stopover in Oklahoma City last Friday. I apologize for not being in the office at the time.

All of us here were very impressed by your testimony on the SALT verification issue. It is a rare and courageous act when an administration official will openly place his concern for national security above regard for personal well-being. You gained, through your candor, an immense amount of respect in this state, which feels that the President is not being completely honest with the people in order to get the treaty ratified.

When you come back through Oklahoma, please try to call me again. This time I hope I won't be out playing hooky!

Please give my regards to Mrs. Turner.

Sincerely,

Chan Lowe
